National Farm Worker Ministry Boycotts Wendy's

27 July 2016, Raleigh, NC: The National Farm Worker Ministry (NFWM) endorsed the Wendy's Boycott of the Coalition of Immokalee Workers (CIW). Executive Director, Julie Taylor, says, "Our board unanimously endorsed this boycott as a means of using their economic power to support the farm workers who are struggling for justice."

NFWM is a 45 year old faith-based organization committed to justice for and empowerment of farm workers. They work with all the major farm worker organizing groups in the country for their efforts at self-determination. The National Farm Worker Ministry long has had a strong relationship with the Coalition of Immokalee Workers (CIW), dating to the inception of CIW, including an active role in supporting CIW as it advanced the farm worker movement.

NFWM has committed to inform their twenty-seven organizational members about the conditions of the farm workers associated with CIW and to urge their constituents to publicize and support the boycott of Wendy's.
